Canada's well-being is founded on STEEL!

in the life of the industrial worker...

In 1910, when Stelco was incorporated, the principal occupations open to Canadians were farming, fishing, lumbering and mining. The 50 years since then have seen Canada emerge as an industrial nation with a standard of living unequalled outside North America.

Today more Canadians work in manufacturing than in any other industry. Manufacturing pays almost a third of all labour income, and is the largest taxpayer.

No country can be important industrially unless it has within its borders a steel industry keeping pace with the country's expanding needs for its products. Stelco, Canada's leading producer of steel and steel products, has kept pace with and has played an important part in the nation's progress towards industrial independence.

Now celebrating its 50th Anniversary, Stelco will continue to supply Canadian manufacturing with steel for the needs, comforts and protection of Canadians.
